IOWA SLAYER WANTS ORCHESTRA AT HANGING

Norman Baker

(HIMSELF)

"Hello Folks"

HANDWRITING — is on the wall for 1932—plainly written—all can read it—the public of Michigan and New York State wrote it there—the bad thing of this whole political thing is—the republicans will try hard to make good times between now and fall of 1932—the democrats will be tickled if bad times stay until after 1932 election—then they can point and say "See, vote for us and get out of this rut"—that does not mean all democrats—not the voters—BUT THE POLITICIANS—It's just too bad that a presidential election year had to follow a depression year—in view of it all, the present party will be awakened in 1932—their feeling of security is slipping—it is the little things that are going to the makeup of the whole trouble—such as closing the stations in Radio that stand for the people—such as giving the control to the few—that will not last forever—even the democrats who could make a national issue out of radio affairs alone—are afraid to go about it—after all it's "DOG EAT DOG"—you scratch my back, I'll scratch yours.

BOYS—take heed—not all of you need to—but many would profit by doing so—at home sits a mother and father—yes maybe brothers and sisters—all in a fine family union—a boy or girl goes out—clips—pays no attention to a little fall—falls harder and harder—gets a little too much liquor—little too much of this and that—keeps going down, down, down—the farther down they go—the better time they think they are having—then comes stealing—and last—MURDER—tonight there sits a dear old mother, father, son and daughter—crying—mourning—on the border of a nervous wreck—even the mother or father may die from grief—all because A. R. Altringer of Dubuque, Ia., is to hang accused of murder—he may be guilty—he may not be—I don't know the evidence presented—BUT IT SHOULD MAKE YOUTH BE CAREFUL.

FORTUNES—If Henry Ford had been born when Adam was born—if he was penniless—and was started out at receiving from Adam $900 daily—and if he received that each and every day until now—and saved every cent of it—he would not yet have the fortune he has now—the same applies to John D.—or if he started with one cent—invested it at four per cent—compounded—he would now have more money than in the world today—yes millions more.

WAR—accomplishes many things—some good—many bad—it is bad in the case of Peter Kuersten—he went to war—he reaped as his reward a craving for blood—TO KILL—after the war he went his way—now he is doomed—he killed nine of his fellow workmen and women of various ages—did it just to be KILLING—and confessed—yes War is H—

MOTHERS—be good and obey the government—they are now advocating through the Children's Bureau that you carry your babies in market baskets—poor kids—now they may lose Mothers care and fondling—YES IT'S TRUE THE BUREAU SAYS THAT—it must be O. K. or surely the Bureau would not recommend it.

BACHELORS and the unmarried fellows—just a little advice—keep away from Rumania—yes even the ladies too—any male or female between 35 and 45—if single you are fixed—if your mate dies and you do not get another within two years—you are taxed again—just how would you like that in America?—Simply wouldn't work.

MAY CALL OUT TROOPS IN IOWA MINE FIGHT

County Attorney Will Hold Conference With Governor

INDIANOLA, Ia.—(INS)—Joseph Watson, county attorney of Warren county, this afternoon informed International News Service that he would leave immediately for Des Moines to confer with Governor Turner to seek protection for Scotch Ridge mine operators against union picketers.

Attorney Watson was expected to ask the governor to send state militia to the scene of the recent uprisings to enforce an injunction against trespassing by union miners who today insulted Sheriff Frank Houghaling as he sought to enforce the injunction.

Scotch Ridge Mine District, Warren county, Ia.—(INS)—Fifteen hundred miners from central Iowa today attempted to force two mine operators in the district to use union labor. The board of miners for the second time this week stampeded on territory of the Ridge Block mine, and the Happy Hollow

One-Time Lieutenant Governor Is in a Serious Condition

BOWLING GREEN, Ky.—(INS)—Brig. Gen. H. H. Denhardt, 55, former lieutenant governor of Kentucky, was shot and seriously wounded as the result of a political argument concerning Tuesday's election here today.

Approaching Denhardt from the rear, William Dent, 50, local automobile salesman, fired five shots, one entered from the back into General Denhardt's lung. Physicians said that the former state official may die.

Gen. Denhardt, who is president of the company that publishes the Times-Journal, democratic newspaper, was walking toward the newspaper office when Dent approached him and whipped out a revolver. As soon as Dent began firing, the publisher, who was unarmed, began running. He ran into the board of trade building, where several bullets were found imbedded in the door.

The trouble arose when H. B. Hines, former city judge and democratic worker, engaged in an altercation with Dent on election day concerning the state constitutional race. Dent, although a democrat, was supporting the republican nominee, C. A. Smith. Hines, an aged man, was backing the democratic candidate, Tom C. Ferguson.

GALLOW MADE AS PRISONER AWAIT DEATH

JOSEPH ALTRINGER IS CALM ON EVE OF EXECUTION

STATE PENITENTIARY, MT. MADISON, Ia.—(INS)—While Joseph Altringer, 33, waited in his cell in death row today prison officials went about preparations for hanging him shortly after dawn tomorrow morning.

With only the possibility of an eleventh hour stay of execution as a very faint hope for additional life, Altringer was spending his last day preparing for payment with his own life for the murder of Earl Fuller, 12, at Dubuque, on Oct. 4, 1930.

Little chance for a stay is seen, however, since Governor Dan Turner in Des Moines yesterday announced that he could see no reason he should interfere with justice in this case.

Will Hang Friday Morning
Sometime after six o'clock tomorrow morning a small party of prison officials, Dubuque county officials, newspapermen and official witnesses, a Catholic priest and Altringer will gather in the small paddock built at one end of the prison.

Altringer, his church counselor, Sheriff F. J. Kennedy and guards will climb the thirteen steps to the platform of the gallows and in a few minutes "Joe" will drop to his death.

Quickly the body will be removed and all signs of the execution removed before the prisoners in the penitentiary are marched to breakfast.

Arrangements have been made by Altringer for the disposition of his body with the psychopathic hospital at Iowa City.

Father To See Hanging
Among the witnesses will be Earl Fuller, father of the boy who was lured from a game with his playmates to his death. The father announced his intention of witnessing the execution "to be sure Altringer is hung."

Professing his belief in the law of an eye for an eye, he secured permission from Sheriff Kennedy to witness the hanging.

Then only will he believe full retribution has been made by law for the slaying of his son in a lonely marsh on the evening of October fourth.

Altringer is ready for death he declared two days ago in the first interview he has given since he was

LEE COUNTY TO HAVE TROOPERS

T. B. Brigade Ordered In by Governor Dan Turner

DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—Governor Dan Turner today issued orders to Adjutant General W. R. Bailey to instruct his field commander, Brigadier General Park A. Finley to use the Iowa National Guard in Lee county to enforce the state bovine tuberculosis test law.

The troops, now stationed at the Des Moines county fairgrounds near Burlington, Ia., while enforcing the law in that county, will work in Lee county from their present camp site.

Only a few herds are to be tested in Lee county, the fifth county in which troops have been required to enforce the law since the insurrection cropped up in Cedar county in September, but Governor Turner said it was apparent that the civil authorities were not sufficient to handle the situation and needed military assistance.

DOLLAR SAYS CONDITIONS ARE ON MEND

Asserts Prosperity Is in No Hurry, But Is Coming

The slump has touched bottom and the trend is now up. Captain Dollar said that now is the time for America to go out and get business.

"There is a lot of hard work ahead of us," he declared. "We'll have to dig and dig hard, for everything is new."

Can No Longer Sit Back
"We can no longer sit back and wait for customers to look us up," Captain Dollar said.

"The American shipyard," he said, "is in a healthier condition than it has been in sixty years."

At that, he said, "Our ships will soon be going to sea in the hands of the world's business."

Captain Dollar's company has recently completed two of the largest ships to be built in American shipyards—the President Hoover and the President Coolidge.

Captain Dollar scoffed at the idea that only highly educated men in the academic sense can ever attain success in the present day world.

"Futuristic," he said. "Good hard work is the main requirement. There is plenty of room at the top for those willing to work their way up."

"Of course," he said, "it is to keep studying the new business. He must always be willing to learn."

"But the idea that a man needs an academic degree to amount to something is silly."

"What particular field do you think offers the greatest opportunity for a young man at the present time?" he was asked.

"It's The Man, Not The Job," he said. "The particular field in which the young man happens to be engaged is not important."

"The man," he said, "is the application of a man's mind into what he is doing."

Captain Dollar also spoke highly of the young man who is engaged in the work of the world's greatest banks.

"Wiring has amounted to something through their efforts," Captain Dollar declared. "He started as a young man, then he started as a young man, then he started as a young man."

I. N. S. Scores Notable News 'Beats' During Past Month

World's Big Events
Truthfully Told
By Organization

Superiority of the International News Service which brings news of the world to the Midwest Free Press again was demonstrated last month when many "beats" were scored over similar news services.

Exclusive information regarding the world's particular biggest news, was furnished the Free Press by International News Service. From Washington, for instance, Robert S. Allen beat the world with an exclusive story on President Hoover's conference about moratorium plans, and I. N. S. alone uncovered White House inquiries into possible employment figures if beer returns.

Many Clean "Beats"

Another clean beat scored by I. N. S. was the announcement that Edison's synthetic rubber had been perfected, with its touching human interest on how the news was transmitted to the great man in his last hours. From far-away Manchuria, Edward Hunter was first on the spot for I. N. S. with news of the Sino-Japanese crisis at Mukden.

At Geneva, Gray I. N. S. was first with a "scoop" on the demand Japan would make as a basis for negotiations.

International News Service was first with the story on Professor Kane in wife-slashing. Another notable "beat" was Frank Menke and staff's coverage of the world series that enabled St. Louis clients, for one example, to score definite leads four out of seven days on after-game extras. The barrage of beats that came out of Legion convention at Detroit, included the first-day exclusive story that the bonus was beaten, 12 hours ahead that the resolutions committee would recommend dry law modification, and 24 hours ahead on the Legion national employment commission report and recommendations.

Star Writers Added

The I. N. S. coverage of the scientific congress that drew a letter of recommendation from the Society of Surgeons, whereupon Leigh Mat- tison, a Chicago newspaperman, and beat all opposition by hours on the discovery of the new element "87" at Cornell, is further proof of its superior service.

An all-star staff of writers is the roster of additions made last month to the International News Service staff in a program of expansion that caused more excitement than anything in the news world. Here are some of them:

Martin A. White, "Matty"—General Editor for Associated Press, and a name wherever modern journalism is discussed; now I. N. S. Assistant General Manager.

Newton C. Parker, Assistant Chief of the Baltimore Sun's foreign news desk; takes over the direction of I. N. S. foreign news.

Frank G. Menke—Headlines sports with his twenty years' expert service and nation-wide reputation.

Clinton Wells—Brilliant by-liner of world news and, among other things, one-time holder of the around-the-world record; now special correspondent.

Charles J. McQuirk—Star newsman and magazine writer, a name for humor and keen observation; added to New York editorial staff.

Arno Doeh-Fleurbaey—World-affairs correspondent and author and another real by-liner; attached to Paris Bureau.

Quentin Reynolds—Novelist and ace of N. Y. World-Telegram brings over his reporter's quick insight and his writing man's bright touch.

C. Edward Morris—Ex-Chief of N. Y. World copy desk. You probably know him for his important series on conditions in the soft-coal regions.

Harry K. Reynolds—Familiar veteran of Washington and London—another notable addition to the foreign news department.

Dorothy Ducas—Ex-associate editor of McClure's Magazine and former star of N. Y. Post and Herald Tribune.

Margaret Lane—Daughter of Director H. G. Lane of the Rothermere British chain, she has quickly established herself as one of the most able and charming exponents of the woman's viewpoint in news.

Leigh Matison—on science, who alternates his brilliant coverage of that difficult subject with breaking such news stories as the Gen. Butler-Mussolini fracas.

Robert S. Allen—Ex-Chief of the Christian Science Monitor's Washington bureau, now another leader at the Capitol for I. N. S.

Ted Thackeray—A brilliant career as editor of the New York Telegram and other big dailies precedes his I. N. S. work in the Orient.

Luther Huston—One of the most familiar figures in the press association field, now chief of I. N. S. Chicago.

Most able and charming exponents of the woman's viewpoint in news.

WORK SEEKERS LIST GROWING

Committee Asking All Work Available Be Reported Soon

With an ever-increasing number of men making applications for work, members of the Citizens Emergency Employment committee are asking which of the 87 district committee men of the city will be the first to issue a call for workers. Although figures are not yet available, applications are being received at a rapid rate, it was announced today.

The general committee of the employment group are asking all captains of the 87 districts, into which the city has been divided, to rush the perfecting of their organization, so that at least some of the men may be put to work. It is hoped to take care of the urgent cases, at least, before the coming of intense cold weather.

In an effort to speed up the plans and make as much work as possible available for the unemployed in the city, Muscatine was divided into 87 districts and a captain named for each one. These men are asked to get in touch with all householders in their district and arrange for employment of as many men as possible.

While the individual householder is asked to co-operate with the committee to the greatest possible extent, efforts are also being put forward to arrange for the undertaking of as much public work as possible in order that employment may be given to a number of men.

Henry Rohlf Named
Farm Bureau Leader
By Sweetland Unit

Henry Rohlf was elected chairman and Mrs. Martha Halling was named as secretary and treasurer of the Sweetland township division of the Muscatine County Farm Bureau held Wednesday night at New Era. About fifty attended the meeting.

A short play was presented by women of the bureau, and motion pictures were shown by Carl Rylander, county agent. Refreshments were served by Four-H club members at the close of the meeting.

The Bloomington township division will meet Friday night at the grange hall.

Rehengerger Rites
Are Conducted Here

The funeral for Mrs. Daisy Rehengerger, 911 Nebraska street, who died Monday afternoon, was held today at 2 p. m. at the family residence and at 3 p. m. from the Muscatine Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Greenwood cemetery with the Rev. William Slack officiating.

DARE

Efficiency, practicability and chic in the modern housewife. (Dahray Design.)

EVEN fur pieces today have gone "artificially sane" as a charming young friend of mine put it the other day! By which she meant that they had passed out of the realm of the uneventful into the realm of true beauty, and that, further, this beauty was both smart and practical.

Well, why not? Fur trimmed coats are fine things to have about, but there ARE times when one really needs a furcoat as well. Plain coats, for instance, need a touch of fur to finish them properly, unless they're only for sports. And cloth frocks are just the things to wear on the streets in betwixt-and-between weather if they are accompanied by some sort of fur neckpiece. "N" candor compels me to state that lovely ladies were beginning to be more than a bit bored with expensive but unimaginative scarves of silver fox or sable.

But today, read what a friend of mine in Paris writes me: "You have endless choices. You might have schiaparelli glamorous fur piece of silver fox. This collar comes high up about your face like a ruff, and spreads out short and round about your shoulders. This ties at the throat. And attached to it by twisted strips of fabric is a muff, a perfectly huge one, which is so made that, if you wish, the inside may be made into a bag. Of course the muff is detachable, and there's almost no limit to the frocks with which it may be worn. Isn't it just the way to make a mid-season coat good for the whole winter, and doesn't its short length make it perfect for dining at swanky restaurants, or for Sunday night?"

THE modern housekeeper is elegant! Oh, yes, she is, because she has the sense to dress for her job, and that helps her to get done with it. There she is, sketched for you today, all dressed in her medium blue Japanese crepe housedress with the extra apron front which can be easily unfastened at that button and fasten back around the back when it is spotted, leaving the skirt of the dress as fresh as ever! And note the big pocket, for dust-clothes and things, note the circular skirt for freedom of steps, the kimono sleeves for the same reason AND the loose gloves which she ALWAYS wears for sweeping and dusting. And elegant wouldn't dream of doing the housework without trying up her lovely hair out of harm's way!

INTERPRETS the MODE

He glanced about the little living room. The photographs on the walls, with their too-ardent expressions of affection, fascinated him. People evidently liked young Farrell.

Well, why not? He certainly could fight. Why, when he had been on the floor before Rayne's arrival had deflected the direction of the combat, there had been not the slightest fear, not the slightest discouragement, in Farrell's eyes or voice. And a man who, knocked down, could still be confident? "He was pretty much of a man."

A lesser man would have accepted Curzon's challenge after the departure of the thugs.

And if the challenge had been accepted then, there could have been no doubt as to the outcome. Curzon had taken more punishment than Farrell and was too weak to have fought longer.

Not that Farrell had evaded battle with Rayne's crew, but the accidents of strife had caused Curzon to suffer more. And Farrell had refused to strike a man obviously not in shape to continue fighting.

"Good lad," was Curzon's mental comment.

And he had reached this point in the way toward readjustment of his views toward the dancer when Farrell appeared in the kitchenette doorway bearing a table on which coffee steamed, and which was piled high with buttered toast.

He placed the tray on the table and poured coffee. In silence each drained a cup; Farrell refilled and munched a moment on a piece of toast, and looked at Curzon.

"What on earth got you so steamed up?" he began.

"Julie telephoned me," interrupted Curzon.

"At that time of night? Well, that means only one thing. Old man, I congratulate you."

Curzon stared at him.

"I don't get you," he said stiffly, "and, furthermore—"

"Now, mix on the high-tail stuff," said Farrell.

"I know," Curzon said, "but they're going to be mentioned. I'm nuts about Julie."

Curzon pushed his cup away; he had risen from the table and was standing.

"Sit down, you say," ordered Farrell.

Not the command, but the surprising epithet, made Curzon sink back in his chair.

"You listen to me," said Farrell. "I kissed Julie. Well, that's all right, whether you think so or not. She ain't married to you, and if I could win her I'd be a fool not to try."

Curzon noted that Farrell did not state that Julie had kissed him.

"In every way I don't rate her," went on the dancer. "We live four blocks apart, and it takes a couple of generations to travel that distance. I told her that—she told me that—and then I forgot what we'd both said. Well, I kissed her. And I left her—gee, it's only a few hours ago, thinking I could get her. Well, I know better now."

He had not said that Julie kissed him. Curzon felt that his chivalry demanded some response.

"I don't know," he said slowly. "She telephoned me—she doesn't know whether she loves me or not. Farrell, I think it's even money that she loves you."

"Which goes to prove what a sucker you are," said Farrell. He eyed his visitor speculatively. "I don't know why I should go out of my way to do you a good turn," he said. "You sort of looked down on me as a ham hoofer—Oh, I know you haven't said so, but I'm smart."

Curzon stared at him.

"I don't get you," he said stiffly, "and, furthermore—"

"Now, mix on the high-tail stuff," said Farrell.

"I know," Curzon said, "but they're going to be mentioned. I'm nuts about Julie."

Curzon pushed his cup away; he had risen from the table and was standing.

"Sit down, you say," ordered Farrell.

Not the command, but the surprising epithet, made Curzon sink back in his chair.

"You listen to me," said Farrell. "I kissed Julie. Well, that's all right, whether you think so or not. She ain't married to you, and if I could win her I'd be a fool not to try."

Curzon noted that Farrell did not state that Julie had kissed him.

"In every way I don't rate her," went on the dancer. "We live four blocks apart, and it takes a couple of generations to travel that distance. I told her that—she told me that—and then I forgot what we'd both said. Well, I kissed her. And I left her—gee, it's only a few hours ago, thinking I could get her. Well, I know better now."

He had not said that Julie kissed him. Curzon felt that his chivalry demanded some response.

"I don't know," he said slowly. "She telephoned me—she doesn't know whether she loves me or not. Farrell, I think it's even money that she loves you."

"Which goes to prove what a sucker you are," said Farrell. He eyed his visitor speculatively. "I don't know why I should go out of my way to do you a good turn," he said. "You sort of looked down on me as a ham hoofer—Oh, I know you haven't said so, but I'm smart."

enough to guess your feelings. And you came over her to knock hell out of me. But at that, you're a swell guy, Curzon, even if you are a trifle dumb."

"Dumb?" Curzon's good eye blazed angrily.

"Dumb I said and dumb I mean," said the dancer. "Good Lord, you're nuts about a girl, and she telephoned you in the middle of the night that another lad has kissed her, and she don't know whether she loves him or not—Well, the other lad knows, all right."

"Just exactly what do you mean?" demanded Curzon.

"Do you have to have it told in pictures? Can't you read? Can't you hear? I kissed Farrell. She tells you I scuffed her and she's afraid she loves me. Listen, Curzon, the only reason in God's great world that she phones you is because she wants the answer from you. She's in doubt, puzzled, and she turns to you—"

"Because she's honest," interjected Curzon.

"Honest? Listen to me. You asked her to marry you, didn't you? 'Yes,' didn't you? What did I do? I grabbed her and kissed her. I didn't do any asking, did I? You can bet your life I didn't. And she liked it. Oh, I'm not boasting, I ain't that kind of rat. I'm just telling you. Here am I, overboard when it comes to her, a million miles out of her class—four blocks away, and the longest blocks in the world. But I grabbed her and kissed her and she liked it."

"But when she phones you, a couple of hours later, that proves she don't love me, whether she knows it or not, because she's relying on you to pull her out, see? And a girl that don't love me—well, I wouldn't want her; it's only break her heart as well as mine."

"But you—she proved she loved you when she told you about me, told you at 4 in the morning, because her heart was breaking, because she's bewildered and rattled—want a tip from me?"

"Go on," said Curzon.

"Well, don't ask her to marry you. Marry her. Take her by the hand and drag her down to City Hall and get the license. Don't stall around for a big wedding. Grab her. Show her. Show her who's boss. That's what a woman like her needs. And now will you get the hell out of here, please?"

"Eh?" Curzon stared at the dancer in amazement.

"Listen," said the dancer. "You're O. K. You mixed in and saved me plenty grief. I'm for you. But don't forget that I love Julie, and it isn't the easiest thing in the world for me to give you advice that goes against my own interest—oh, it isn't for you, Curzon. But it's because I know where her heart really is. If I thought I could hold her after I got her, I'd try to get her. But her heart would break and mine—well, I've given you your tip. Go ahead and marry her. You'll find—oh, my God, you'll find that you've married the loveliest girl that ever lived, the gamest, sweetest—"

His head fell forward on his arms. Curzon looked down at him a moment. Then, softly, quietly, he left the apartment.

The Proposed Dictatorship of Trust Magnates

—That for each field of business a representative trade association should perform the functions of an economic council.

A close analysis of the above five proposals upon which America's organized business class is voting discloses the fact that the proposals are put in moderate, reasonable, cunning language calculated to intrigue the progressive business man and obtain his affirmative vote.

The interests behind the referendum can afford to thus rate the case mildly. All they need is the assent of Ameri-

The door opened and a pair of gray-blue eyes laughed as she started back.

"Oh, you are here already. You—I—" she broke off beneath the admiring smile.

"In short, both of us. Come in and let me show you the quaint living room and the den."

As one in a dream she obeyed. At last called her attention to the niche where a gold clock twinkled behind its crystal globe she reflected upon the charm of this young man who would rather sponge upon his old aunt than go to work. Red hair waved in spite of a close shave and a few gray hairs on when she prepared to go.

Of course we should all know that it is an error in grammar to say "either 'go places' or 'go some place' and avoid using such expressions."

Mrs. Hole next discusses the sentence, "We should not speak disparagingly of anything." "One important reason that we should not speak disparagingly of anything is, if we wish to speak correctly, that we should disparage no person, property, or thing," she says. "Disparaging is a verb; it means to speak of in a derogatory manner; it is used only of things. We may properly speak disparagingly of achievements, but not of the people who achieved them."

Well taken, Mrs. Hoe. We might slander some one, but we won't.

MINNESOTA WILL BATTLE WILDCATS FOR LEADERSHIP

Four Other Big Ten Teams to Meet in Minor Contests

By WEST PETERSON
INS Sports Writer

CHICAGO—(INS)—While Northwestern and Minnesota are battling at Evanston to determine which shall remain the undefeated eleven in the Big Ten, four other teams will be engaged in contests which will have minor effects on the conference standings.

Coches Bob Zuppke's inexperienced team, playing before a Dad's Day crowd at Champaign, will have an opportunity to prevent the season from turning into an absolute failure. The Illini have been on the upgrade all season, as was demonstrated in their defense against Northwestern, and they may prove a match for the Badgers who possess a superior record.

Wisconsin opened the year in fine style by upsetting Purdue, but has suffered beatings since then at the hands of Penn and Minnesota. There is a possibility that the Cardinals will fail to get out of the losing rut Saturday and capitulate to the outfit which has made only one touchdown in three loop encounters.

Injury Dims Hopes

Coch Thistlethwaite has been giving his regular heavy practice on aerial offense this week, with John Schneller playing the role of the man. The injury of "Buckley" Goldenberg, quarterback, has dimmed the Cardinal hopes somewhat.

The Illini also have suffered from injuries. Walter receding hurt that forced Coach Zuppke to cast about for a new quarterback.

The Wisconsin-Illinois rivalry, began in 1895, has been kept flaming with fifteen contests. Illinois has won seven victories to Wisconsin's six. Two of the games ended in ties.

The third Big Ten game this week is Indiana vs. Michigan at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines, who ranked high in the list of title contenders before they were knocked into a cocked hat by Ohio State, were favored to win.

Michigan Has Improved

Since its defeat at the hands of the Buckeyes the Michigan team has whipped Illinois and Princeton. Indiana has been beaten by Ohio State, tied Iowa and defeated Chicago. The Wolverines have a powerful running attack and plenty of strong backs, which may be used to wear down the Hoosiers.

Vic Dauer, veteran quarterback, probably will be the chief actor in Indiana's expected passing attack. Sabrik is injured and will have to remain on the bench.

The four teams engaged in the lesser conference dramas have the following games remaining on their schedules after Saturday:

Michigan—Minnesota; Indiana—Northwestern and Purdue; Wisconsin—Ohio and Chicago; Illinois—Chicago and Ohio.

Pyrotechnics When Shires Faces Dean On Round in '32

NEW YORK—(INS)—What a riot of the National League of 1932 promises to be what with housing "Dixie" Dean and Art Shires, the loud-est of loud speakers.

And imagine Shires, up at the disc, scolding at Dean and making coy and cunning remarks—and Dean responding; Likewise, if Shires hits safely imagine what he'll say to Dean, or what Dean will say if he whiffs Shires.

As to Shires:

Well, as soon as he was purchased by the Bostonians he sent a telegram to the press throat in which he wrote, in part:

"You certainly are to be congratulated in getting me for your ball club."

Richard Wilson to Lead "B" Team in Game With U High

Richard Wilson, scrappy pivot man on the Muscatine high school "B" team, was elected to captain the team in the game with the University high team of Iowa City at Jefferson field Friday afternoon.

The election was held at the Jefferson school dressing room following practice Wednesday afternoon.

Wilson, a sophomore, has shown lots of form this season and his teammates choice of him as captain is considered a good one.

Coch Howard McIlrath put his candidates through their final workout Wednesday in preparation for the game and he has every member of the team primed to the limit.

Coch McIlrath announced that he expects the locals to put up a great battle against their more experienced opponents.

Following the game with University high the entire squad will meet some time next week and elect an honorary captain for the year. Later on a banquet will be given the squad, McIlrath announced.

CAGE PRACTICE BEGUN AT IOWA

Bradley Tech Will Be First Opponent at Peoria, Dec. 5

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS)—Their first game just a month distant, University of Iowa basketball players began strenuous drills today. They will meet Bradley Tech at Peoria, Ill., Dec. 5.

Because the first game is only a week after Iowa plays a charity football game, the Hawkeye Cadets will be handicapped by absence of Howard Moffitt, brilliant sophomore forward; Alex Rogers, veteran center; Philip Thurlie, forward; and Harold Swaney, guard, all of whom are busy on the gridiron and will have no time for basketball practices.

LOCAL HUNTERS GO NORTHWARD

Pheasant Season in 23 Iowa Counties Opens Friday

Several parties of local hunting enthusiasts today turned about face and headed to northern Iowa counties to take advantage of the two day open pheasant season, Friday and Saturday.

Twenty-three counties are open to pheasant hunters this year and all have been carefully surveyed and will be adequately policed. Many rules have been laid down this year on the shooting of this popular wild bird which roams the fields of the northern counties and a close lookout for violators of the law will be made.

Last year there were 33 counties which had open days on the hunting of pheasants but this was reduced to 23 this year. The following counties are open this year: Chickasaw, Howard, Mitchell, Floyd, Butler, Grundy, Hardin, Franklin, Worth, Cerro Gordo, Hancock, Humboldt, Winnebago, Kosuth, Emmet, Palo Alto, Clay, Dickinson, Osceola, O'Brien, Lyon, Sioux and Plymouth.

Some of the local hunters who left today for the northern part of Iowa are Glen and Fenton Barnard, Ernie Root, Clyde Grau, Vernon and Albert Thede, Jack and Sanford Schmeck, Leonard Hunn, Henry Ripston, Ed Hank, Harold Wilson, George Jehring, Ralph Alt-haus, Carter Hamilton, Homer Mueller, Otto Maeglin and John Ficken. Many others are planning to go and will probably leave for their respective hunting grounds tonight. Each hunter may kill three birds a day.

HICKMAN IOWA HOPE SATURDAY

Hawks to Make First Nebraska Invasion In 13 Years

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS)—With an eleven hour attempt to polish their traditionally weak passing attack, a squad of 33 University of Iowa football players today prepared to leave tonight on their first invasion of Nebraska in thirteen years.

There will be ample need for old gold aerial thrusts if Rhea, All-American tackle, and Koster and Justice, veteran guards, perform up to standard in the Nebraska forward wall at Lincoln Saturday. They will doubtless halt Hawkeye line jabs, while weakness of their own ends makes successful Iowa flank attacks improbable.

Hickman, the man who carried the ball 162 yards from scrimmage to beat the Huskers 12 to 7 here last year, will be the hope of Iowa. Besides ball toting, Hickman made a major share of passing and part of the kicking. The halfback reached the top of his stride Tuesday, but was withheld from scrimmage to avoid injuries yesterday.

If Iowa wins Saturday, it will be her fourth successive victory, but in the feud which reached its height two decades ago and Corn-huskers won ten while Iowa was victorious in five games.

New York Yanks Get Outfielder Selkirk

NEW YORK—(INS)—The New York Yankees today had acquired outfielder George Selkirk of the Jersey City International League.

Featherweight Ruler Retains Crown by Narrow Margin

CHICAGO—(INS)—Christopher Batalino still wore the world's featherweight championship crown today after a precarious ten rounds spent in the stadium ring last night with Earl Mastro, the hard-hitting Chicagoan.

The champion won on a decision which was not unusual, that, despite the two 126 pounders waged a furious battle in which Batalino managed to absorb every kind of withering punch Mastro could deliver.

Mastro Floored Twice

Twice, once in the second round and again in the sixth, the champion floored the game challenger. But Batalino was forced to absorb a terrific bombardment in the opening rounds.

Mastro had a tremendous lead on the champion up to the sixth round when Batalino whipped a terrific right to the challenger's stomach. Mastro settled to the canvas for a count of nine.

The challenger resumed his aggressive attack, but his rally apparently carried insufficient fire to harm the rugged Batalino. The Chicagoan hit the champion with just about everything he could muster, but Batalino's stamina weathered the storm.

Bout Almost Draw

Mastro's bid for the championship was so spirited that, despite the two knockdowns, the battle nearly ended in a draw. Edward Hint, one of the judges, declared the fight a draw. Ed Klein, the other judge, gave the champion 52 points and 48 to Mastro while referee Dave Barry gave Batalino the edge on a score of 51 to 49.

The crowd numbered 14,022 persons.

FRANK FRISCH IS LUCKY MAN

Star Second Baseman Claimed Luckiest Athlete of All

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—Frankie Frisch, just elected the most valuable man in the National League of 1931, might also have been named as one of the luckiest athletes of all time.

When he was 21 John McGraw picked him up from the Fordham College Campus and made him a regular. No seasoning for him. No minor leaguings. A big time job with major pay right from the beginning.

In 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1924 the Giant's-plus-Frisch—were in the word series. Frisch's shares were $5,265, $4,470, $4,112 and $3,820—something more than $17,000 extra cash.

McGraw decided in December 1926 that he wanted Roger Hornsby and a deal was made whereby Frisch was included in a trade. Looked like a lot of bad luck for Frisch because he was being shunted aside by a club that looked like a flag winner in 1927 and beyond.

But the luck of Frisch continued while the Giants, his old team, have been consistent bunting failures. The Cards with Frisch have won pennants in 1928, 1930 and 1931 and the Frisch pay-off of world series spoils has been $4,181, $3,536 and $4,495.

What's become of the salary and the bonus? Well, Frisch has the vast bulk of it in gift edge real estate of in savings banks. They never will have to put on a benefit for the "Fordham Flash."

GRAIN PRICES MAKE STEADY CLIMB UPWARD Wheat Prices Shoved Higher Despite Heavy Selling

CHICAGO, (INS) — The wheat market continued its boom today. Deferred contracts shot up to new highs for the year. March was at the best price in more than four months.

There was another general rush to buy wheat, at the lowest and value were elevated and 5 to 10 and later advanced further in spite of heavy selling. Around noon prices showed gains of 1 to 1.30.

May wheat, the most active delivery, hit 1.10 early, while July touched 1.20, 3-8c. March reached 1.10-1.20.

The further drastic improvement in the leading commodity again represented a shooting up to a supply and demand position.

Active deliveries of corn, oats and soybeans scored new high levels for the reason in sympathy with wheat. Trade broadened, especially in corn with good support in prices.

At mid-session corn was 7-8 to 1-3-8c higher, oats 1-2 to 1c up and soybeans 1-2 to 1c better.

CHICAGO, (INS) — Soviet Russia is not buying wheat openly in the Chicago market and board of trade officials have no information indicating that wheat is being bought here for Russia. James C. Murray, of the Board of Trade told International News Service today.

Murray was asked about statements recently published in Canada that the Soviet government had an ambassador at Paris as saying that Russia was buying wheat in Chicago.

Story Said Unlikely
There is not much chance, Murray said, "that Soviet Russia is in the market for wheat. I have not heard of Russia being in the market and it is unlikely."

"If Russia is interested in the spot market it could buy from the farm board, the grain stabilization corporation or through brokers or commission."

J. P. Griffith, three times president of the Board of Trade and now with Bache & Co., said he did not know of any action of the Soviet government in the local wheat market.

"They might be in and then again they might not, I cannot say. We would not know for sure, as they likely would operate through the market through foreign brokers houses, maybe through Antwerp, Paris or a dozen different places. There would not be any way to tell, and in executing the order have no trace of the originator of the movement. No one can say positively that Russia is in the local market, or that they are not, but it would be a surprise if they did buy."

No Russian Business
Nat C. Murray, prominent operator of the Chicago Board of Trade, said he had not heard of any Russian business in the market. "As they are not members they could not deal direct, but would have to operate through brokers or commission houses, and then no one would know."

Free Press Coupons Bringing Trade Revival To Muscatine

Merchants Claim Idea One of Best Ever Followed Here

Stores accepting Midwest Free Press merchandise coupons are doing a tremendous business, and all Muscatine is jubilant over the new impetus the Free Press has given to the local business houses.

Dentists, grocers, hardware dealers, butchers, department stores, tobacco shops, drug stores and various other places of business are reporting a marvelous revival of trade since the launching of the coupon plan.

Free Press Congratulations
The Free Press has received congratulations by the hundreds from the shopping public on account of this new way to buy merchandise and on the ten per cent saving. There is no "joker" attached to this offer. It is primarily a Free Press idea to bring back prosperity quickly. The ten per cent saving is made possible by the Free Press and the agreement to accept the coupons at the local stores is a tie-in on one part of the merchants and on the other part of the coupon plan.

Thousands Buy Coupons
Many of the merchants have expressed their belief that this is one of the finest ideas that could have been worked out to awaken the buying public. Thousands are now buying their merchandise with coupons.

The coupon books are on sale at the Free Press office. The shopper pays $4.50 for the book. The stores co-operating in turn will give $5.00 worth of merchandise. The saving is 50 cents on each book. Each day finds the demand increasing. There is expected to be a big rush for the books for Saturday's shopping.

HOOVER'S NAVY POLICY FACING STIFF BATTLE

Naval League Stands Squarely Behind Gardiner

at the president's special committee appointed to disprove the accuracy of Gardiner's pamphlet when it said it welcomed an "impartial and comprehensive investigation."

In the language of the resolution adopted, the naval league "affirms its faith in the statement issued by the league's officials."

The two charges in the league's pamphlet to which President Hoover took the most exception were, first: That he and Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald, of England, reached agreements at the Rapallo (Va.) camp of the teachers' federation of the London naval conference "that have never been officially divulged in their entirety;" and, second, that the senate foreign relations committee was refused permission to see "even in exiguous session" the full records of the negotiations and possible preliminary commitments preparatory to the 1930 conference.

Col. Stearns explained his vote as follows:

"In voting 'no' to the resolution I wish to record my deep conviction that Mr. Gardiner's statement contained unseemly and unjustified language concerning the president of the United States and the navy of the United States, and that should not be approved by the navy league."

Those who signed the resolution were the chairman of the board, Walter Bruce Howe, this city; William Howard Gardiner, New York; Henry Cabot Lodge, Beverly, Mass.; Nelson Macoy, New York; N. M. Hubbard, Jr., Chicago; Douglas Robinson, of Mohawk, N. Y.; assistant secretary of the navy in the Coolidge administration; former Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York.

While the league's resolution was being made public Mr. Hoover's own committee of five, started its initial meeting at the metropolitan club to appoint a chairman and make plans for the gathering of official data to disprove Gardiner's assertions.

BURIED KIN; CHEATED FIRE
MISSOULA, Mont. (INS) — The life of the forest ranger is full of hard work, careful observation and quick action. A report recently made by Evan W. Kelley, regional forester, shows that there were 1,537 fires, or an average of 21 each day during the season. Careless tourists, lightning, incendiaries, unauthorized burning of brush, railroads, logging operations and unknown causes were blamed for most of the fires.

During a three-day fire in the Freeman lake region of the Kaniku national forest thirty-four families, totaling more than 100 persons, were made homeless. Edward Bailey buried his wife and two children in a pot to patch, covering them with earth and wet sacks. Next morning he dug them out, none the worse for their experience.

Youth Prepared For Ordeal
Yesterday when he was notified that his appeal for executive clemency had failed the youth again expressed himself as prepared to pay with his life for the crime. He was unmoved when the governor's announcement was told to him.

Tonight Altringer will eat chicken ala king at his last meal. The menu with "all the trimmings" was ordered by Altringer several days ago.

Whether the Dubuque youth will have any guests at his dinner tonight was not revealed.

Requester Prison Orchestra
Neither was it revealed today whether his request for the prison orchestra to be stationed outside the walls surrounding the gallows, playing a selection named by Altringer as he goes to his death, will be granted.

Altringer's death will be the nineteenth in Iowa on the gallows. Fifteen men have paid the death penalty under civil law, while three men were executed at Camp Dodge in 1918 under military orders for criminal assault.

The last hanging in Iowa was on November 16, 1925 when Gabe Simmons, a tourist was executed for the murder of Orton Ferguson, a resident of Michigan at West Liberty, Iowa.

MODERN BIBLE IS RELEASED

New Version Will Be Published by Early Part of Month

By WEST PETERSON
CHICAGO, (INS) — A new version of the Bible — the "best seller" of all time — was placed in the hands of reviewers today preparatory to official publication on Nov. 10.

It is distinctly American. The style, extremely readable for the modern age, is on a high literary plane. The poetry of the story of God has been preserved.

The prodigious labor of putting the Bible in the vernacular was performed by a group of untiring faculty members of the University of Chicago. J. M. P. Smith edited the translation of the Old Testament, and Edgar J. Goodspeed translated the New Testament.

The American version is published by the University of Chicago press and will sell for $3.50.

Hi Auto Gyro Fans Ought Not to Have "Skipped" Classes

Some twenty Muscatine high school students made up their minds to witness the flight of the auto gyro at the local airport Wednesday afternoon, which was scheduled to fly during school hours, so they "skipped" two of their afternoon classes and left for the airport.

Today these twenty students, among which are six Little Musky football regulars and four girls, were disciplined when they returned to school. Principal F. G. Messenger, Assistant Principal A. W. Johnson and Coach Bob Kinnam took the six grid men into the office this morning and explained what penalty they faced for their act.

They will be suspended from their classes for the rest of this week and probably several days next week, this point having not been definitely settled. Mr. Messenger announced. Whether or not the football players will be eligible for the game with the Dewitt high team next Wednesday is not known either. Mr. Messenger requested that none of the names of the students be revealed.

ADDIS KINDERGARTEN
NORTON, Mass. (INS) — Wheaton College, through whose portals only girl students have trod, has opened up a new branch, where modern lotharios may study alongside their sister-students—that is, provided they are between the ages of three and five years.

A nursery school has been added to Wheaton College, which will serve the double purpose of providing local kindergartners and at the same time a children's laboratory for older girl students taking a course in "The Psychology of the Pre-School Child."

Miss Martha H. Chandler, for four years superintendent of the Cambridge Nursery School, has joined the Wheaton faculty to take charge of the new branch. Already 20 juvenile students are enrolled.

Both the Griffith and McDonald mines were idle when the mob visited them today. These mines, the operators said, will remain closed until adequate protection is provided for them.

The McDonald mine company is an unusual concern. All employees of the firm are stockholders. They resent paying their share to the union and branded the union officials as "racketeers" who sought to use gang force upon them.

disregarding a state injunction against their trespassing.

Sheriff Frank Houghtaling and his deputies were helpless in keeping out the mob and several miners threatened to disarm the county official. Houghtaling was enforcing the injunction obtained Tuesday against Frank Wilson, head of the United Mine Workers in the 13th district, and all union men from trespassing.

This second uprising was said by J. F. and J. A. McDonald, operators of the Ridge Block mine, to be the result of agitation by union leaders against non union mines. Albert Epps, operator of the Oak Hill mine in this district, abided by the union's demands and changed to union labor.

M. W. Griffith, operator of the Happy Hollow mine, held his ground and refused the demands that he employ union miners.

The mob, after visiting the mines here, threatened to return late this afternoon and again picket the "scab" mines.

Both the Griffith and McDonald mines were idle when the mob visited them today. These mines, the operators said, will remain closed until adequate protection is provided for them.

INDIAN SLAYER IS IN TRANCE

Ancient Methods of

of the Apaches and is used by them to commune with the spirits. Since white men gained control of Arizona the Indians have used the trance method to defeat questioners prying into the soul of the red man.

Try To Unravel Mystery

White men were trying to unravel the mystery that surrounded motives for the killing of Miss Seymour. Seymour had confessed he attacked her and killed her with a knife and stones when she refused to dance with him while they were en route to a dance on the Fort Apache Indian reservation last July.

Seymour was held without bond for the murder. Today all other principals in the primitive drama of clashing loyalties and hates had gathered in Tucson, seat of the United States district court.

These principals included Robert Galewood, an Apache, held as a material witness after he declared he saw Seymour with Miss Seymour a few minutes before the murder. John C. Gungl, U. S. attorney for Arizona; D. S. Commissioner Dan E. Williamson, who bound Seymour over for preliminary trial Nov. 23; John Daugherty, Globe, Ariz., attorney for Seymour; and a man said to have been a mystery witness in the co-ed murder.

Apache Witness Held

Galewood, admitted he had introduced Seymour to Miss Seymour, whose work on the Indian reservation was to find out the Indian customs and ceremonial customs and write a book about them.

The Apache witness will be returned to his home but will be kept under surveillance of William P. Maupin, the deputy sheriff who broke down his reserve and obtained Galewood's story for the prosecuting officers.

Seymour in the peculiar trance, has hardly uttered a word following an exclusive interview with International News Service, in which he went at length of his month and a half of papoose.

The baby, born this fall to Seymour's Indian wife, has not yet been named except for the secret ceremonial name known only to the mother and to the midwife. He will get his name when, as a young man he wins it by some exploit.

U. S. OFFERED MONEY MARKET

Economic Expert Says
New York Will Get
Leadership

and Uncle Sam guarantees every dollar of it.

"Great Britain's sudden suspension of gold payments was a shock that will take a long time to overcome," said Prof. Kemmerer. "It will deprive London for a long time, if not permanently, of her position as the world's money market center."

"This position is now offered to New York."

"The United States have a well-organized banking system. In recent years we have been engaging in the field of international finance."

"The all-important question is: Have our bankers enough of knowledge of international finance, enough experience, enough vision and financial leadership to take the position that London is now passing to us? It is our opportunity and responsibility."

"Will we meet it?"

Dr. Kemmerer denied that the United States has been grasping for the gold supplies of the world. Most of the gold importation of the post-war period, he said, was thrust upon us for safe-keeping. He urged greater confidence on the part of Americans toward their banks, and pointed out the evils of the hoarding of either gold or bank notes.

"One important reason why our stock of monetary gold in the United States is so large at present may be expressed in the term 'Safety First,'" said Dr. Kemmerer. "Given the collapse of 1929-31 with its losses, bankruptcy, unemployment and social unrest, it is not strange that people should have converted their capital into gold and put this gold in the safest place they could find."

Prof. Kemmerer sounded a plea for the fuller use of our banking facilities.

"Much of our gold is still comparatively idle, but it will be put to work when people abroad and people at home come to believe it can be put to work safely and profitably."

"The hoarding of paper money in the United States is foolish. All of our American paper money, in addition to the other assets back of it, enjoys the guarantee of the United States government, and our government meets its obligations."

"Hoarding money earns no interest. Hoarding is usually a wasteful and socially harmful practice. Normally the proper place for small savings is a bank, and most savings in American banks are safe. Most of the failed banks have been very small, and the percentage of total deposits that have been lost or temporarily tied up by these bank failures has been exceedingly small. Where no bank is to be found in a town the postal savings bank, which pays interest at 2 per cent will be an excellent depositary."

Introduction into Hungary of a little machine which will record telephone conversations and after-ward reproduces them is planned.

Delegation to Dixon

A delegation of local Knights of Pythias will accompany the local officers of the Sixth District Speakers' Bureau and the local lodge bureau deputy, who will attend and participate in the Speakers' Bureau meeting to be held with the Knights of Pythias lodge at Dixon, Ill., tonight. Bureau delegates from all over the district as well as delegates from Tigress Temple No. 219 of Davenport and the tri-cities, with their Oriental band will attend. Officers of the bureau are A. F. A communique issued by General Honjo, Japanese commander, said that the battle started at two o'clock in the afternoon and was continuing into the night.

Local Officials to Witness Hanging at Ft. Madison Friday

Sheriff Fred B. Nesper and Chief of Police Mark Taylor will go to Ft. Madison on Friday to witness the execution of A. R. Altringer of Dubuque. Altringer is due to hang at dawn for the murder of Ed Fuller, a Dubuque boy.

Faulkner mentioned the circulars of the department of justice as being followed by Perucca but Judge Woodward retorted the sheriff was charged not with violating the circular but with violating the order of the court.
